this edited collection examines the potential of dance training for developing socially engaged individuals capable of forging ethical human relations for an ever changing world and in turn frames dance as a fundamental part of human experience this volume draws together a range of critical voices to reflect the inclusive potential of dance the contributions offer perspectives on contemporary dance training in Britain from dance educators, scholars, practitioners and artists through examining the politics, values and ethics of learning dance today. This book argues for the need of a re-assessment of the evolving practices in dance training and techniques. Key questions address how the concept of technique and associated systems of training in dance could be redefined to enable the collaboration of skills and application of ideas necessary to twenty-first century dance. The editors present these ideas in different modes of writing: this collection of essays, conversations and manifestos offers a way to explore, debate and grasp the shifting values of contemporary dance. Examining these values in the applied field of dance reveals a complex and contrasting range of ideas encompassing broad themes including the relationships between individuality and collectivity, rigour and creativity and virtuosity and inclusivity. This volume points to ethical techniques as providing a way of navigating these contrasting values in dance. It serves as an invaluable resource for academics as well as practitioners and students.

This book applies notions from C. S. Peirce's philosophy such as semiosis, mind, diagrammatic reasoning, abduction and habits to contemporary problems in distributed cognitive science. These problems include distributed cognitive systems, cognitive niche construction, external representations, cognitive artifacts, agency and emergence in this movement. Peirce's approach provides a philosophical framework that reconceptualizes fundamental notions in distributed cognitive science among the founders of pragmatism. Charles S. Peirce remains one of the least influential within the pragmatic turn in cognitive science. Nevertheless, Peirce's theory of mind is processist and externalist, placing it at the center of cognition and the action of external signs. This book is therefore of interest to philosophers of science as well as cognitive scientists and cognitive linguists.

The artist, dancer and educator Suzanne Harris (1940–79) was a protagonist of the downtown New York City artists' community in the 1970s with her boundary-transgressing practice. She played a decisive part in avant-garde projects such as the Anarchitecture Group, 112 Greene Street Food and the Natural History of the American Dancer. Harris furthermore participated in the Heresies editorial collective. Nevertheless, her own oeuvre fell into abeyance. Friederike Schöfer reconstructs Harris's dispersed post-minimalist body of work which broke the mold of art categories, art practices, art spaces and the common notion of space. The author draws on post-Marxist feminist theory to trace how Harris transcended both sculpture and dance to create site-specific ephemeral installations. Recipient of the Terra Foundation for American Art International Publication Grant 2021, look inside.
